1. Did you provide an overview of your topic?

Is there a page or pages dedicated to the overview of your topic? Did each person contribute to the overview? Have you organized the text or pages to transition smoothly from one point to the next?

Mark only one oval.

- You betcha!
- Whoops, let's assign someone to do that.

2. Have you used at least 5 sources to build your site?

Is one of those sources from Fold3 or Ancestry? Have you provided in-text citations?

Mark only one oval.

- Yes, you crazy kids, we used more than 5 sources!
- Um...Of course. We have exactly 5 sources.
- Well, bust my buttons! We have fewer than 5. We'll get on that right now.
- Gee, Mister, what are sources?

3. Did you include one personal account from the Holocaust that connects to your topic?

Did you get this from The Holocaust Collection? (If not...remember, you need to have used that site at least once!) Did you copy an overview of their experience to your site? Did you properly cite that overview? Did you provide an analysis of how it connects to your topic?

Mark only one oval.

- Of course!
- We have the personal account, but we forgot the analysis...
- You'll see me in a few minutes because I don't know how to cite this!

4. Did you include an analysis of how Elie Wiesel's personal account connects to your overview?

Did you provide a brief explanation of his experience, connect it to the topic, and include TEXT BASED EVIDENCE?

Mark only one oval.

- You know it!
- We have an overview and connection, but what is this, a crime scene!?! (We forgot the evidence)
- No...Just...No. :(

5. Did you provide TWO primary source documents?

Did you get at least one from Fold3 by Ancestry? Did you provide a copy? Explain what it is? Where and who created it? Did you explain its purpose?

Mark only one oval.

- Totally, for sure...
- It's on the site, but now you want to know about?
- Ummm...Uhhh...Did you see Will Ferrell on Jimmy Fallon the other night?

6. Did you provide a Bibliography?

Are ALL of the sources you consulted listed...Or did you only list the one's you sited? Is it in alphabetical order? Is it properly formatted?

Mark only one oval.

- Bow to the masters...It is finished!
- They're all listed! But what's this you say about formatting?
- So...The bare minimum won't work?
- What you talkin' 'bout, Willis?
